BETTER EVERYDAY ATHLETICS

TOPIC 01 · INTRODUCTORY PRESENTATION

CREATING MORE INCLUSIVE FITNESS ENVIRONMENTS

James Anderson, CSCS · Speaker · Inclusive fitness coach · Author of Legacy of Health

THE TALK

Why people with intellectual and developmental disabilities are still so underserved in health and fitness, and how any organization can change that. James shows what inclusive fitness looks like in practice and how to bring families and caregivers into the process.

WHAT YOUR AUDIENCE TAKES AWAY

- Why inclusive fitness is about more than exercise: confidence, independence and connection
- How to adapt a space, a session and a coaching style so everyone can take part
- Simple first steps your organization can start the following week

ABOUT JAMES

James Anderson is an NSCA Certified Strength & Conditioning Specialist, a former Registered Behavior Technician and the author of Legacy of Health. His work with the Special Olympics of Colorado and his background in behavioral therapy give him a rare depth of understanding when it comes to motivation, adaptation and personal growth.

BEST FOR

Nonprofits · recreation and community centers · schools · health and therapy providers

FORMATS

- Keynotes and commencement addresses
- Staff training and workshops on his inclusive coaching methods
- Hands-on movement demonstrations
- Conference breakout sessions
- Virtual talks and trainings
- Panels, podcasts and media interviews

AVAILABILITY

In person or virtual. National, virtual and co-op events are welcome.

INVITE JAMES TO SPEAK

speaking@bettereverydayathletics.com
(303) 579-7350